Study Title: Integration, coordination and multidisciplinary care – Findings from the literature

Brief description of the study: Integration, coordination and multidisciplinary care are topical concepts in the provision of primary care. The purpose of this research is to undertake a systematic literature review to explore the concepts of these terms in primary care and to explore the effectiveness of these approaches for different groups, specifically, aged, palliative and chronic populations.

The review approach involved an initial scoping study to refine the concepts and possible data sources. From this there was a refinement of the review protocol to focus on a series of specific illuminating reviews including three reviews on sentinel conditions within the chronic population to represent different phases of risk and need, a review of multidisciplinary teams and frail aged care, and a review dealing with case conferencing in palliative care.
