Study Title: Development of a statewide coordinated specialist and generalist palliative medicine training program
Brief description of the study: A preliminary analysis of medical workforce planning data from Victoria indicated that at present there are insufficient palliative medicine specialists practicing in Victoria to meet current service needs, future training of practitioners and expansion of services and accreditation requirements of the Royal College of Physicians. This project will address the lack of specialist palliative care physicians in the long term by focusing on the current inadequate recruitment of specialist trainees and providing a region wide focus on specialist training. A suitable model of palliative care medical support that addresses future workforce issues will be developed for medical palliative care practitioners located in health services, community health centres and stand alone non-government palliative care services.
